CHRISTMAS CAROL.

BY LINNET.

Come down, Oh! ye angels of Heaven,
And echo on earth again
Your praises to God in the highest,
Your message of peace to men.
As glad are the glorious tidings,
This day to the world rehearsed,
As when, to the shepherds of Juda,
Your voices proclaimed them first.

Oh! sweet is the chorus that rises
So high in our earthly choirs,
And merry the chimes that awaken
The echoes among the spires;
And yet we are yearning for something
Their music can never bring—
We praise, and our hearts are rejoicing,
Yet sigh when we cease to sing.

A chord in our being is blended
Whence harmony may be drawn,
If hands that are skilled in its nature
Be lovingly pressed thereon.
No sigh would arise, and no yearnings—
No sound but of joy be heard—
If this, by the hand of the Master
Who knoweth the heart, were stirred.

But whether to-day we are given
The joy that is perfect peace,
Or only the gladness and triumph
That soon, for a time, shall cease,
Let voices and hearts be uplifted,
And chiming of bells ascend,
Till even the heavens, to listen,
Again to the earth shall bend.

MY LOTTERY TICKETS.

HOW MUCH THEY COST AND WHAT THEY AMOUNTED TO.

It was Saturday night, and the little woman who bears my name and mends my stockings was sitting in her low chair by the fire, zealously putting a patch upon the knee of little Tom's trousers, turning the piece of cloth this way and that, and holding her head on one side to watch the effect. But the stripes would all run the wrong way, while the colors were provokingly bright compared with the faded garment.

"Never mind that, Mary," said I, "here's a chance to throw away your patches. Hurrah for a lovely country seat on the Hudson, fifty shares of bank stock, a house in town, or anything else you wish, and all for a dollar."

"Now, Thomas," said she—when she wishes to be particularly severe she always calls me Thomas—"what are you talking about?"

"A gift enterprise, Mollie; tickets only a dollar, and sure to draw a prize." I read the heading and exhibited the long list of prizes. "What do you think of that?" shouted I, triumphantly.

"I think," she said, laughing, "that if you make so much noise you will wake the baby." Then seeing that I looked annoyed, she added: "But I do not think that lotteries are just right, especially for church members. Do you?"

"Oh, nonsense! I never saw a church fair in my life that did not have grab-boxes and lotteries. I shouldn't dare to say how many dollars I have spent on them, and never drew anything either."

She looked roguishly at me. "Don't you think, then, you are most too old to begin."

"It may as well be I as any one, and it is no great matter—only a dollar."

"I know, Tom," and the wise little woman looked grave, "but we haven't many dollars to throw away;" and she held up the baby's socks with a good sized hole in each heel. "And little Tom's school bill comes in next week."

I laid down my paper and tried to speak very convincingly. "Now, Mollie, it is all very well for a man to jog on day after day, earning and spending just so much, but he likes to make a venture once in a while, just for the excitement of the thing, if nothing more."

"Yes; but, Tom, don't you remember the share in the oil well?"

"Y-e-s," said I, slowly, for it was a rather unpleasant topic of conversation to me. I had invested the little sum left me by a maiden aunt in an oil company, against Mary's good judgment. Capital a million of dollars, more or less; oil wells flowing day and night on the land of the next company, just over the fence. I was very much elated, and promised Mary, among other things, a new black silk dress we had seen displayed in some show window. Well, they bored and bored, throwing up dirt and water, a great deal of dirt and water, but not a drop of oil; and just as they were about to begin in another spot the treasurer, or some one else, ran away with the funds, and that ended the whole affair. Mary, like a good little woman, never reproached me, but when I came home one day and saw her turning her old merino inside out and upside down, I felt—well, I can't tell just how; but I thought of that black silk dress.

"And, oh!" she continued, "don't you remember the patent for the flour sifter?" and she laughed outright. So did I when I thought of the spectacle I presented when I chanced to turn the crank the wrong way, and the flour flew in every direction.

But I had made up my mind to buy one of these tickets; so, though Mary sighed, she said no more. I invested on my way down town, Monday morning, and thought while I was about it I might as well buy one for Mary, and one for little Tom, too. I showed them to her when I went home to dinner at noon.

"Not three! Oh, Tom, how could you?" and she looked really grieved, while I, thinking it a pity if I must account for every penny I spent, assumed the dignified air which the occasion seemed to demand, and the meal passed in silence. I went home at night to find her sewing as usual. My conscience gave a little comfortable twinge as she looked up pleasantly in my face, and then turned to the great basket of work. If she only had a sewing machine! Perhaps I should draw one; and I grew quite happy over the thought, imagining her surprise when I sent it home unexpectedly. She would not think me unwise then in having bought the tickets.

Little Tom interrupted my reverie with—"O, father! Old Susan, who used to work for us, has been here to-day. She has burned her hand so she can't do anything. Mrs. Briggs gave her a dollar. Mother said she couldn't give her any money, but she put some salve on her hand and gave her something to eat." I did not look at Mary, but contrived to turn Tom's thoughts into another channel.

Nor was I any more comfortable, on passing through the hall the next day, to overhear her conversation with a friend. "No," she was saying, "I shall not subscribe to the reading club this winter; I can't very well spare the two dollars."

Well, the days went by without our saying anything more about it. I grew a little nervous as the time for drawing the prizes drew near, and opened my morning paper with some trepidition. At length my eyes were greeted with a long list of the fortunate numbers which had drawn the largest prizes. I read them all over carefully, from first to last, and then more carefully still, from last to first; but in vain—my numbers were not there.

In a day or two another list appeared, which I read with the same result. At last, among those which drew a prize worth less than one dollar, I found my own.

"T m," said a friend whose office was next to mine, "don't you think Jones was fool enough to buy a ticket in that gift enterprise!"

I winced, but said nothing, and he went on. "What do you think he drew? A dauby print of Washington and a pair of eighteen carat brass buttons. He consoles himself with the adage, 'Live and learn,' but I think 'A fool and his money,' etc., more appropriate."

I made some reply and left him. I thought I would not carry home the newspaper that night; I was ashamed to have Mary see it. But as we sat before the fire after tea:

"Why, Tom!" said she, "where's your paper?" I had intended to say that I forgot it. But I defy any one to look into Mary's clear brown eyes and tell a lie. So I just told her the whole truth.

I believe if she had scolded, or said: "I told you so," I should have put on my hat and left the house; but her only remark was, "Never mind, Tom, we'll know better another time."

Do you wonder that I think her a wonderful little woman! I made a great resolve that night, and I have not bought a lunch down town nor smoked a cigar for a month. Even my pipe and paper of Kilikinick are laid away on a high shelf, out of the way of temptation. And when Mary ask what has become of my pipe, I look sober and reply that I think smoking disagrees with me; but I laughed to myself as I think of the sewing machine that will stand in the corner by the window before many months, and the rest that will come to those busy fingers. I even stepped into Brown & Smith's to inquire the price of their best black silks; but that I dare not think of at present.

It has been, after all, a good lesson; but I think it will be my last, as it was my first experience in lottery tickets.

A ROUGH COURTSHIP.—A Chatfield (Minn.) paper says: A fast young lady of this town and her "feller" took it into their heads, on Wednesday evening last, to have a quiet chat in one of Reinore's hacks that stood at the Medary House barn. The arrangement was, however, overheard; and about the time the loving couple had seated themselves, the hack went flying down Main street to the post office, manned by about as many men and boys as are usually found to "run with the machine." Upon arriving at the post office door, the hack was stopped and the usual cry of "mail" made by the driver. The Deputy Postmaster, hearing the same, was prompt on the spot to receive Uncle Sam's treasure, when, instead of a mail bag, a female landed in his arms, and before he could cry "stop her," she was off down the street like a shot cat. The boys say it was the richest little joke that ever took place in Chatfield. What the young lady thinks deponent saith not.

AN IMPROVEMENT IN MAKING CANDLES.—Let the wick be steeped in lime water, in which has also been dissolved a quantity of common nitre or saltpetre. By this means a pure flame and a superior light is obtained. A more perfect combustion is also insured; snuffing is rendered nearly superfluous, as in wax candles; and the candles with wicks thus prepared will not melt and run down,

SHAKSPEREAN NOTES.

MACBETH CONSIDERED IN A NEW LIGHT.

Macbeth was a Highlander, from Highland county, Ohio. He was distantly related to the Highlands of the Hudson. He early emigrated to Scotland, where he first attracted attention as a brigadier of malitia. One night, while crossing a lonely moor, coming home from a general muster (pretty well peppered), he was accosted by three witches, one of whom cried, "All hail Macbeth, Thane of Clam Chowder!" while another saluted him "King of the Cannibal Islands!"

They all united in a chorus of "Hoko poka, waka, fum," all of which had the effect to greatly inflame the ambition of the General, Thane he was already, but there was one slight difficulty in the way of his being king—the position was filled. Duncan held the throne, and it was evident to the most casual observer that Duncan wasn't such a donkey as to abdicate in favor of Mac or any other man. He wrote to his wife all about it, hinting that he would like the situation of king, should there be a vacancy—having held almost every other office, from alderman of his native village, up.

Mrs. Macbeth was a strong-minded female, generally understood by the neighbors to wear the breeches. She couldn't wait for Duncan to pass away in the regular course of nature, so she egged Macbeth on to hasten his demise and possess the throne. An opportunity soon offered. The King one night having remained down town until the cars had stopped running, was forced to stay over night at the Macbeth residence. Mrs. Macbeth showed him every attention. She gave him the spare bedroom off from the parlor; she had a fire built in the parlor stove; hot water for him to wash in, &c.

When the good king had retired, Macbeth and his wife consulted together as to the best plan for removing him from a world of trouble. It was at length arranged that she should get his servants drunk on "apple-jack" while he carved the aged Duncan. She would have done it herself, she said, had he not resembled Macbeth's father-in-law, as he slept.

Macbeth steals on tip-toe to the king's bed-chamber and shortly returns with a dagger in each hand, stained with scopeberry juice. The deed is executed and stamped, and only requires to be registered. He was very pale and trembled violently, being seized with that remorse of conscience which every villain feels after committing crime, until he is satisfied that he isn't going to be caught at it.

He is troubled about the scopeberry juice on his hands, and wants to know if there is water enough outside of temperance organizations to wash it off. She tells him that a little turpentine will easily fix that. He starts at every sound, and seems to hear a voice which says, "Sleep no more! Macbeth doth murder sleep," added something to the effect that Mrs. Winslow's soothing syrup would be unavailing in the future to insure to him a quiet nap. Disgusted with his timidity, she snatches the daggers from his hands, and, bearing them to the front parlor, places them by the sides of the kings servants, who are drunk under the piano. This is for the purpose of fastening suspicion upon them as the guilty parties, it being the well-known custom of murderers to lie down and go to sleep, immediately after butchering a gentleman, with the gory implements of their profession in their hands.

Just before daybreak the door-bell rings; McDuff, a Scotch nobleman of Irish extraction, who had been up all night at a Fenian ball, had stopped to inquire if the King was stirring yet, not knowing that the King wouldn't stir any more. Macbeth directs him to the best bedroom where the King lies. He goes there, but quickly returns with the startling announcement that the King has been murdered!

Macbeth takes on terrible about it of course. Mrs. Macbeth comes in her night-gown, and is carried out in a swoon; the neighbors are aroused, and a messenger is dispatched at once for the coroner. Macbeth stabs the King's servants, and tells the jury at the inquest that he couldn't help it when he saw what they had done—he never was so mortified in all his life.

The King's sons leave the country, fearful that the malady that had carried off their father might run in the family, when Macbeth starts a rumor that they were implicated in the assassination, and appoints himself king. Henceforth his career is one of blood, ably supported by Mrs. Macbeth, who, like the devoted wife that she was, did all she could to promote her husband's prosperity.

They killed Banquo, one of King Duncan's generals, but his ghost persisted in sitting at their feasts, which didn't improve their appetites particularly, and was very uncivil in the ghost. They carried on a general slaughtering business for some time, but at length McDuff raised a regiment of Fenians, and after vanquishing the "Queen's Own," put all the King owned to flight, when Macbeth was killed in a hand-to-hand fight with McDuff. His last words were, "Lay on McDuff, and d—d be him who first cries out Scotch snuff!" and McDuff laid on with such effect that Macbeth was soon knocked out of time.

Mrs. Macbeth fled to America. The last that was heard of her she was stumping Kansas, under an assumed name, in favor of female suffrage.

Gold Kettles found in Montana Tombs.

A most wonderful story, says the Leavenworth Commercial, Nov. 2d, reaches us from Montana; indeed, a tale which we should hardly credit, were it not related to us by one whom we consider worthy of credence. The gentleman who related the circumstances to us, came down by the steamer yesterday, and had himself conversed with Mr, Edward Parsons, one of the lucky adventurers, who gave him the following particulars: In July last, a company of five prospectors was made up in Helena, who having heard of the unexplored country around the head of the Yellowstone, determined to visit that district in search of lodes. The country was found to be almost entirely free from Indians, and there was abundance of game, until they arrived within two days journey of Yellowstone Lake, when the scene entirely changed, the country being entirely barren, and permeated in every direction with hot springs, and fissures in the rock from which issued smoke and noxious gases.

Continuing their journey through a scorching atmosphere, and encountering some peril among the rough and irregular ridges of bare rock, which everywhere distinguished the landscape, the travellers, on the third day, came to the margin of a small lake, from which issued a river, which they judged, would lead to the Yellowstone. After following the stream for some time, they came to a long, irregular mound, crowned on the summit by an ancient stone "Carn," similar to those seen in some parts of New Mexico, which was half concealed in grass and a growth of low bushes. As the work of removing the stones did not appear to be a difficult one, they being uncemented and of medium size, it was proposed to open the "Carn," which was done, after half a day's labor, and below was found a solid cemented floor, which sounded hollow to the tread. Being, however, determined to complete their work, the travelers, after some labor, dug down some twelve inches when they came to an immense stone, seven feet long, which took the united strength of the party to remove. Beneath, there was a long, low chamber, and when the eyes of the intruders became accustomed to the darkness, it was seen that an Indian catacomb had been unearthed. Seated in a single row around the quadrangle, were the remains of upward of thirty warriors, from whose forms the flesh had long since mouldered away, and whose very bones crumbled into dust at the touch of the spectator. On the floor around lay numerous instruments of war or chase, some of iron, some of stone, and the entire apartment was covered with a fine and almost impalpable dust, which was all that remained of the furs and robes with which this abode of death had, doubtless, at one time, been decorated.

Lying beside the bones were numerous ornaments, indicating the rank of the dead, and among them were many of those twisted circlets of gold known to antiquarians as "torques," which had at one time entwined the necks and the arms of their savage owners. Some of these were of unusual size, weighing one and a half or two pounds, and many other ornaments of the same precious metal were also secured by the happy finders. What chiefly attracted attention was, however, a massive basin or a kettle that occupied the centre of the apartment, and was doubtless used as a sacrificial censer for burning incense, it being two feet high and two and a half in circumference. The massive article, wonderful to tell, proved, on inspection, to be pure gold, and was so heavy that the party had great difficulty in removing it from its resting place and bringing it into the upper air.

Endeavors were then made to break the vessel, but the pure quality of the gold caused it only to bend beneath the weight of the blows inflicted upon it. After great exertion, the adventurers were enabled by means of their axes, to sever the mass into portable pieces, laden with which the party turned their steps homewards, having themselves to walk the greater part of the way to give relief to their burdened animals. The whole amount of gold was brought to Helena, and Mr. Edward Parsons calculated that his share of the treasure amounted to about $21,000, the whole amount being at least $100,000 in value.

A GOOD CEMENT.—Gutta percha dissolved in chloroform, so as to make a fluid of the consistency of honey, produces a good cement. When spread, it will dry in a few moments, but it can be softened by heating. Small patches of leather can be cemented on boots by its use in such a manner as to almost defy detection, and some shoemakers employ it with great success for this purpose. It is water proof, resisting all the elements but heat.

TO REMOVE STAINS FROM MOURNING DRESSES.—Boil a handful of fig leaves in two quarts of water until reduced to a pint. Bombazines, crape, cloth, &c., need only to be rubbed with a sponge dipped in this liquor, and the effect will be instantly produced.

MR. YOUATT the famous veterinary surgeon, who has been bitten eight or ten times by rabid animals, says that crystals of nitrate of silver rubbed into the wound, will prositively prevent hydrophobia in the bitten person or animal.

Solomon's Throne.

The following account of this remarkable piece of mechanism purports to be taken from the Persian manuscript, called "The History of Jerusalem:"

The sides of it were of pure gold, the feet of emeralds and rubies intermixed with perals, each of which were as large as an ostrich's egg. The throne had seven sides; on each side were delineated orchareds full of trees, the branches of which were of precious stones, representing fruit, ripe and unripe; on the tops of the trees were to be seen figures of plumage birds, particularly the peacock, the etanh, and the karges. All these birds were hollowed within artificially, so as to occasionally utter melodious sounds, such as the ear of mortal never heard. On the first step were delineated vine branches having bunches of grapes, composed of precious stones of various kinds, fashioned in such a manner as to represent the various colors of purple, violet, green and red, so as to render the appearance of real fruit. On the second step, on each side of the throne, were two lions of terrible aspect, large as life, and formed of cast gold.

The nature of this remarkable throne was such that when Solomon placed his foot on the first step, the birds spread their wings and made a fluttering noise in the air. On his reaching the third step, the whole assemblage of demons, and fairies, and men, repeated the praises of the Deity. When he arrived at the fourth step, voices were heard addressing him in the following manner: "Son of David, be thankful for the blessings which the Almighty has bestowed upon us." The same was repeated on his reaching the fifth step. On his reaching the sixth, all of the children of Israel joined them; and on his arrival at the seventh, all the birds and animals became in motion, and ceased not until he had placed himself on the royal seat, when the birds, lions and other animals, by secret springs, discharged a shower of the most precious perfumes on Solomon, after which two of the karges descended and placed the golden crown upon his head.

Before the throne was a column of burnished gold, on the top of which was a golden dove, which held in its beak a volume bound in silver. In this book were written the Psalms of David, and the dove having presented the book of the King, he read aloud a portion of it to the children of Israel. It is further related that on the approach of evil persons to the throne, the lions were wont to set up a terrible roar, and to lash their tails with violence, the birds also, and demons and genii to utter horrid cries; so for fear of them no one dared be guilty of falsehood, but all confessed their crimes. Such was the throne of Solomon, the son of David.

KIND INQUIRIES.—Cousin Kate was a sweet, wide-awake beauty of about seventeen, and she took it into her head to go down on Long Island to see some relations of hers who had the misfortune to live there. Among the aforesaid relatives there chanced to be a young swain who had seen Kate on a previous occasion, and seeing, fell deeply in love with her. He called at the house on the evening of her arrival, and she met him on the piazza, where she was enjoying the evening air in company with two or three of her friends.

The poor fellow was so bashful that he could not find his tongue for some time. At length he stammered out:

"How's your mother?"

"Quite well, thank you."

Another silence on the part of Josh, during which Kate and her friends did the best they could to relieve the monotony. After waiting about fifteen minutes for him to commence to make himself agreeable, he again broke the silence by—

"How's your father?" which was answered much in the same fashion as the first one, and then followed another silence like the other.

"How's your father and mother?" again put in the bashful lover.

"Quite well, both of them." This was followed by an exchange of glances and a suppressed smile.

This lasted about ten minutes more, during which Josh was fidgeting in his seat, and stroking his Sunday hat. But at length another question came—

"How's your parents?"

This produced an explosion which made the woods ring.

SOLDIER WIT.—We have read many amusing specimens of soldier wit during the war, but as good as we have seen was the reply of a Virginia cavalryman to a North Carolina infantryman. It was on the march toward Adairsville in November, '63, in cold, bright morning, while the troops were lying along the road waiting for obstacles to be removed in front. A fellow came jogging down the line on an old flea-bitten frame of a horse, and as he passed a chap greeted him with:

"I say, mister, you are mighty like a brother of mine the hogs eat up."

The cavalryman did not relax a muscle, but gazing "tar heel" straight in the face, replied:

"Well, my friend, 'tis a monstrous pity they hadn't finished the family while they war a eatin'," and moved on amid shouts of laughter.

CAMBRIA FREEMAN.

EBENSBURG, PA.,
THURSDAY, : : : Dec. 26, 1867.

A MEETING of the Democratic State Central Committee will be held at the Democratic Club Rooms, Harrisburg, on Tuesday, Jan. 7, 1867, at 7½ o'clock P. M. A full attendance is especially desired.
WILLIAM A. WALLACE, Chairman.

Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock.

There is something in a name! The general order of the hero of Williamsburg in assuming the command at New Orleans proves that we have at least one military commander, who recognizes the Constitution as the paramount law of the land, and who is determined to wield his powers in subordination to its provisions.

There is one military chieftain, who still believes the civil power superior to the arm of the military in time of profound peace: who still regards the writ of Habeas Corpus and trial by jury as the common birthright of the American people: and who is willing to accord to sovereign States the power to govern themselves.

Such a man is worthy of the name of the presiding officer of the immortal fifty-six, who signed the Declaration of Independence—worthy of the prefix of the Hero of Lundy's Lane and conqueror of Mexico.

We do not favor military chieftains for President, nor are we willing to take any thing for Grant-ed as to their political opinions: but should the Democracy be thrown upon a military chieftain at all then Gen. Hancock is our man, and all the people will say, Amen.

A warm hearted Pennsylvanian, reared in sight of Independence Hall, amid the classic fields of Valley Forge, Brandywine and Germantown, he could not be ess than a true-hearted patriot. If the other district commanders would follow in his footsteps, instead of seeking to enslave the South, the work of reconstruction would be easy.

NEGRO RULE.

Late intelligence from the West Indies presents a frightful picture of negro rule in Hayti. The particulars concerning the assassination of Montez, remarks the Age, are well calculated to arrest the attention of the friends of Christian civilization in all parts of the world. After starving him for four days, an ineffectual attempt was made to complete the business by poison. After this, Salnave, the negro President of the so-called Republic, ordered one of his assassins to smother him, but this attempt also failed, and he was finally stabbed, and his skull cut to pieces with a chisel. His body was delivered to his friends bootless and hatless on boards and conveyed to the cemetery, his friends insisting on burying it without placing it in a coffin. Intoxicating liquors were freely distributed to the people to induce them to cheer for President Salnave. The brother of Montez was captured, and chained to the bloody bed of his murdered brother Leon. Montez's parents have been crazed by his assassination, and have fled to Dominica for fear of the vengeance of the negro President.

Now, as the Radicals insist upon Africanizing ten States of this Union, of putting power in the hands of the negro race, is it not time for white men to pause and ponder upon such facts as those presented with reference to negro rule in Hayti? What has happened in that island will happen in this country, if the Radical policy is carried out in the South. Already negroes are demanding power and authority over white men in that section. When that is denied they resort to force, and murders and outrages are becoming of daily occurrence. This is but the beginning of a policy which will result in far more terrible scenes when the negroes are fully organized under the lead of desperadoes, both white and black. Recent events in Hayti bear strongly upon this question of negro domination in the Southern portion of this Republic, and we hope the facts will be read with attention by every white man in this country.

THE overthrow of Radicalism, in 1867, is the title of a lithograph print published by the Philadelphia News Company, and represents Radicalism in the shape of a hydra headed dead duck, slain by the Hercules Popular Will. One of the characters has just heard the Ohio election returns, and with tears coursing his cheeks, and a hand covering his eyes, he pours forth the lamentation. "No more ridin' in de kears, no more buzzin wid de white folks, O! O! Ohio!" Another American citizen of African descent tries to console him; he is sitting on a large trunk labelled "Freedmen's Bureau," with basket and umbrella by his side, exclaiming "No use cryin' Sam, white man's shook you dis time." The dead duck is on his back, twisting his tail, and manages to keep one of his heads erect, while he bleeds at the nose of his other head from the sturdy blows inflicted by the "popular will."

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

—A $65 pearl was found in an oyster at Alexandria, Va., the other day.

—A son of the "martyr," John Brown, was lately placed in an Ohio lunatic asylum.

—Two wealthy Chicagoans have gone to law about a lot of four inches front, on a street in Chicago.

—It is reported that the engineer whose carelessness caused the Vermont railroad disaster has become insane.

—Albert Smith, a freedman, has been appointed by General Pope a Justice of the Peace in Tuscaloosa county, Alabama.

—A severe shock of an earthquake was experienced at Utica, N. Y., and the adjoining country, early on Wednesday morning.

—A young wife in Northern New York threw her bonnet and shawl into the river, left a suicidal note for her husband, and eloped with another man.

—A robber took $10,000 worth of diamonds from a jeweler's store in Cincinnati, on Wednesday night. The scoundrel was pursued, captured, and nearly all the valuable property recovered.

—The late Seth Hinshaw, a noted spiritualist, of Greensboro, Henry county, Ind., had his gravestones engraved and prepared for about twenty years before his death. He used them as counters in his store.

—On Saturday night last, Williiam Rogers, of Chattanooga, Tennessee, accused his wife of infidelity, which she denied, whereupon Rogers leveled his revolver, and shot her twice, killing her instantly.

—The Cumberland County Poor House took fire on Thursday night, and was damaged to the amount of $2,500. Three persons were burned to death—one, an insane man who was chained to the floor, being literally roasted alive.

—The widow of a former member of Congress, residing in Hallowell, Me., lately married her hostler. He treated her cruelly, and she applied for a divorce, whereupon he decamped with $20,000 in bonds, leaving her in destitute circumstances.

—They have earthquakes at St. Thomas at the rate of 47 in 24 hours; or about one every 30 minutes; and in St. John, recently, they had 114 in eight days. For these desirable residences, we believe Mr. Seward wants us to pay $7,500,000 in gold.

—S. J. Woodman, of Chicago, Ill., writes to the New York Farmers' Club, that a barrel or a cask of new sweet cider, buried so as to be well covered with fresh earth, will turn to vinegar in three or four weeks, as good as ever sought affinity with cabbage, pickles, or table sauce.

—The Pacific States have been visited with a decidedly unpacific storm. California, Oregon, and Washington Territory have been afflicted, some small towns have been swept away, and any number of dams carried down stream. It requires some nerve on the part of gold miners to lose their dams without swearing.

—A negro boy was arrested at St. Joseph on the 5th instant for setting fire to the house in which he was employed as a servant. A reprobate old African told him that he was working for "rebels," and urged him to burn them out. Accepting this Radical teaching, he placed burning coals on the roof of the kitchen.

—The Cooper Ironworks at Phillipsburg, N. J., with the mining lands belonging to them, were sold last week for six hundred thousand dollars. One of these mines belonged to William Penn, and the first lot of American iron made from it was landed at Liverpool, England, thirty years before the Declaration of Independence.

—The Coroner's jury, on the bodies of the persons that perished by the late tenement house fire in N. Y., returned a verdict Thursday to the effect that the fire was originated by Max Miller, and censured the owner of the house for not providing suitable means of escape from the building. Miller has been committed for trial without bail.

—A few days since a boy in Littleton, N. H., set fire to a stump on the land of his father, near the village, and, it having burned away, he discovered in the earth, at its roots, a small tin can, tightly sealed, which was found to contain a quantity of counterfeit dies, well preserved in oil. It had evidently remained there for some length of time. The dies were well executed, and for the purpose of making small American coin.

—The attempt is again being made to confederate into a single nation the South American Republics on the Pacific slope of the Andes. Peru has taken the initiative, and has addressed a circular upon the subject to the government of Chili, Bolivia and Ecuador. These four nations, which, it is proposed, shall form the new Republic, have 3,900 miles of sea coast, contain 6,8000,000 inhabitants, and cover 1,185,000 square miles of territory.

—Colonel Parker, the Indian chief on General Grant's staff, who was to have been married on Monday last to a belle of Washington city, has turned up. He says he was drugged by a brother Indian, to prevent him marrying a white woman. As Colonel Parker is about the color of a new saddle, in view of the future, he had better take a darker hued maiden claiming to be of the superior race. It is likely he would not be drugged under an arrangement of this kind.

—A novel wedding took place in Columbia, Conn., recently. The bridal party was to be married and leave town on the next train. They started for the clergyman's residence, having but little time to spare, and met him on the way. In order that no time might be wasted, it was proposed to have the marriage ceremony performed then and there—right in the middle of the road. No objection being made, the minister did the business, several people meanwhile arriving as passers by on the road, who were accepted as competent witnesses. The married couple got to the cars in ample season to start on their tour.

THE ANGOLA CATASTROPHE.—The terrible railroad catastrophe at Angola, in the western part of this State, turns out to have been even more destructive of life than has been reported. There is now reason to fear that the slaughter will not fall short of sixty. The personal horrors connected with the affair are even more heart-rending than in ordinary railroad catastrophes, and the appalling nature of the entire scene is too shocking for the imagination. The dead are out of all common proportion to the wounded, and, considering the circumstances, it is remarkable that a spark of vitality was found in any of the passengers. The unfortunate victims were not only burned to death, but the greater part of them were past all recognition. Our first report gave the statement that the accident was understood to have arisen from a defect in a rail; a later report says the train struck an iron frog at a switch, and another report says that the disaster was caused by the breaking of a wheel. By one or other of these means the car was thrown from the track and precipitated over an adjacent embankment, with the ghastly results already mentioned. In any event, there is no doubt that there was culpability, horrible culpability, on the part of the managers and agents of the Lake Shore Railroad.

The charred remains of the entire body of murdered victims have, we suppose, been gathered up, and will probably be sent to their families. The surviving friends will forever mourn over their irreparable losses. There will be suffering of many kinds, for many long years to come, in hundreds of hearts, because of the railway slaughter at Angola. For these things it is out of the power of men to furnish reparation or remedy.

But we again add another to the thousand warnings and appeals we have made in times past in connection with these ever-recurring railroad disasters. We demand at once justice for the culprits, and the adoption of something like common precautions against the recurrence of such heart-rending outrages.—N. Y. Times.

A LONG SEARCH FOR RELATIVES BY TWO BOYS.—About fifteen years since, William G. Berry and family, two sons and a daughter, removed from Charlestown, Mass., and located in New Ulm, in Minnesota. Here they remained until 1862, the family having increased to three sons and three daughters. It was in the month of October of that year that the hostile Indians of the Sioux tribe committed their ravages in that State. One afternoon two boys, eight and eleven years of age, went out in pursuit of a stray cow. When they returned at night they found their father, mother, three sisters and a brother all murdered, and some of them scalped by the Indians. There was no residence very near, and these two children were left to their own resources. They passed one farm house where a whole family were hanging in front. They had heard of Charlestown, and wished to reach there, hoping to find the relatives or friends of their parents.

These two children commenced their journey, stopping on the way and doing such work as they were able in various towns, and at the end of five years they reached Boston and Charlestown. But no one could they find who had any knowledge of the family. They stopped a while in Boston, then went to Gloucester, where they sought an uncle named R. N. Heath. They were told that he resided in Portsmouth. On Tuesday evening they arrived here and appplied for lodgings at the police station. Marshal Johnson heard their story and gave them accomodations. They can find nothing of their uncle here, and are now at the City Farm until some place for them can be secured. The oldest, William Berry, is now 16, and Joseph is about 13 years of age. They are intelligent boys. A reference to the records of the times shows that Indian outrages were committed in Minnesota at the time they state.—[Portsmouth (N. H.) Journal.

AN ELEPHANT KILLS HIS KEEPER.—The elephant Romeo, known as one, if not the largest in the country, was placed a short time since on a farm in Hatboro, Montgomery county, Pa., for winter quarters by his owner, Mr. Forepaugh, and leaving his keeper, Mr. W. S. Williams, in charge. On Wednesday last Mr. Williams went to the place where the elephant was kept, for the purpose of washing the face, tusks and portions of the body of the animal, and while thus engaged Romeo attacked Mr. Williams, thrusting one of his tusks into his body and treading upon him. The cries of the keeper attracted a number of persons, when the elephant allowed the wounded man to be removed without opposition. Williams was so dreadfully injured that he died in about one hour after being attacked. The elephant seemed to be perfectly docile shortly afterwards, but it was thought proper to confine him with chains, so as to prevent future accidents. Mr. Williams, the deceased, belonged to London, in Canada West, and leaves a wife who was with him at the time of his death. He had charge of Romeo for four or five years, some fifteen years ago, and did not again assume the duties of keeper until one year ago.

IF a letter-writer from Lima, Peru, is to be believed, there is a region forty leagues from that city, called the valley of Juaca, where the climate "restores consumptive persons to health as certainly as night follows day." No other medicine is required except the pure air of the valley. Hundreds of persons are said to go to Juaca from all parts of Peru yearly to be cured of this terrible disease; and although the writer anticipates that medical men "will smile at the idea of consumption being curable," he still avers that every invalid—excepting only those in the last stage of the malady—returns physically sound after a residence in Juaca of from one to two years. This statement ought to interest the medical readers and those who may be afflicted with consumption, enough to induce some inquiry into the truth or falsity of it.

—In view of the skating season, the following, from Hall's Journal of Health may save our friends who indulge in the recreation of skating no small amount of discomfort. "Before starting for the ice, bathe your feet in cold water, dry them perfectly, and give them a good rubbing with a crash-towel, but on a pair of woolen or heavy cotton stockings, and your feet will remain comfortably warm for three or four hours in the coldest weather."

—It will be remembered that some weeks ago, William G. Graves was arrested in Michigan, as the accomplice of Chase, in the murder of Mrs. McDonald, in Jefferson county, last February. He has been tried, found guilty of murder in the second degree, and sentenced to eleven years and eight months in the Penitentiary.

AMERICAN WALTHAM WATCHES.—The true value of Machinery applied to Watchmaking is not that by its use Watches are made rapidly, but that they are made correctly. Very few people know a Waltham Watch should be superior to any other. In the first place, at Waltham the Watch is regarded as only a machine, to be constructed like any other machine, on mechanical principles. If the watches are good it is because the machinery is good. Of course there must be no defect in the principle or plan of movement—no mistake in the sizes or shapes of the pieces of which it is composed—nothing wanting in their properties, and no error in their positions. These points once thoroughly settled, it rests wholly with the machinery, constructed with infinite diversity of form and function expressly for the purpose, to produce the finished pieces. By means of multiplying gauges and microscopes, tests and inspection for the detection of wear in the cutting tools, and for faults and flaws in steel and stone are made to accompany the work in every stage from beginning to end. As a necessary result, the watch goes together a perfect machine. Every part is found to fit properly in its place. Every pin may be pushed till it pinches, and every screw turned home. Instead of sluggish and feeble action, the balance, even under the pressure of the lightest mainspring, vibrates with a wide and free motion, and the beat has the clear ringing sound always characteristic of the Waltham Watch. The machine is a timekeeper from the start.

This system of watchmaking is unknown in foreign countries, and is entirely original with the Waltham Company. The Company claim that by it they produce watches that cannot be equalled for every quality which makes a watch valuable. Simple in plan and correct in principle, the movement is not only beautifully finished, substantial, accurate and cheap, but is uniform in the minutest details, not easily damaged, and when repaired always as good as new. There are different grades of finish in the different varieties of watches made by the Waltham Company, as there are different sizes and shapes to suit all tastes and means; but every Watch that bears the genuine trade-mark of "WALTHAM" is guarantied to be a good one, and nobody need be afraid to buy it.—Every Watch fully warranted. For sale by all first-class dealers in the United States and British Provinces. THE NEW

AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA!

A Popular Dictionary of General Knowledge.

EDITED BY

GEO. RIPLEY AND CHAS. A. DAY,

Aided by a numerous select corps of writers in all branches of Science, Art and Literature!

In 16 large volumes, 8vo.
750 double-column pages in each volume.

The leading claims to public consideration which the new American Cyclopædia possesses may be thus briefly stated:

"1. It surpasses all other works in the fullness and ability of the articles relating to the United States.

"2. No other work contains so many reliable biographies of the leading men of this and other nations. In this respect it is far superior even to the mere bulky Encyclopædia Britannica.

"3. The best minds in this country have been employed in enriching its pages with the latest data, and the most recent discoveries in every branch of manufactures, mechanics, and general science.

"4. It is a library in itself, where every topic is treated, and where information can be gleaned which will enable a student, if he is so disposed, to consult other authorities, thus affording him an invaluable key to knowledge.

"5. It is neatly printed, with readable type, on good paper, and contains a most copious index.

"6. It is the only work which gives any thing approaching correct descriptions of cities and towns of America, or embraces reliable statistics showing the wonderful growth of all sections."

Every one that reads, every one that mingles in society, is constantly meeting with allusions to subjects on which he needs and desires further information. In conversation, in trade, in professional life, on the farm, in the family, practical questions are continually arising, which no man, well read or not, can always satisfactorily answer. If facilities for reference are at hand, they are consulted, and not only is the curiosity gratified, and the stock of knowledge increased, but perhaps information is gained and ideas are suggested that will directly contribute to the business success of the party concerned.

A Cyclopædia is pre eminently the work of our country and generation. This is the age of steam. No one has time to grope among a hundred different works for every little fact required, without the certainty of finding it at last. With a Cyclopædia embracing every conceivable subject, and having its topics alphabetically arranged, not a moment is lost. The matter in question is found at once, digested, condenced, stripped of all that is irrelevant and unnecessary, and verified by a comparison of the best authorities. Moreover, while only men of fortune can collect a library complete in all the departments of knowledge, a Cyclopædia is worth in itself for purposes of reference at least a thousand volumes, is within the reach of all—the clerk, the merchant, the professional man, the farmer, the mechanic. In a country like ours, where the humblest may be called to responsible positions requiring intelligence and general information, the value of such a work cannot be over-estimated.

THE LAST APPEAL.

Some more numbers will conclude the first me of the Freeman, and we deem it not t proper but imperative that we should ke a final appeal to those who have not ay, or only a portion, of their sub- ions for the current year. At the close present volume there will be over six ed dollars due us from subscribers who taken our paper from the commence- t, or within a few weeks of the com- ncement, of our enterprise, and as we feel have earned this money honestly laboriously, and have given full value or, we have no hesitation in soliciting ir payment from every one in arrears. will accept $2 as the subscription price ar, if paid within four weeks, but if time is permitted to go by unimproved shall make out bills against all who owe more year, and charge the extra fifty r our trouble and the expense of col- ting the several amounts. So take heed, all that are interested, and remember that to accommodate us and save additional ble to yourselves by a timely attention to matter. Persons who wish to avail emselves of this offer, and do not desire to come to us direct, will have no trouble in finding some one of their neighbors who will attend to this duty with pleasure, and who will do justice to all parties.

HOLIDAY FESTIVAL.—Notwithstanding the fact that has prevailed for a short time past in regard to the Holiday Festival in aid of the new Catholic church, the enterprise has not by any means been abandoned. It is true the affair will not be got up on as large a scale as was at first contemplated, owing to the fact that similar festivals for the purposes are to be held in neighboring towns, and it is not the wish of the Rev. Father here to interfere in any way with the success of these various enterprises. It is the intention, however, to prepare a grand sup- per at the Union Hotel on to-morrow (Christmas evening, to which every person is cor- dially invited who has a spare dollar to in- vest in a good cause. On Monday and Tues- day evenings of next week feasting and fes- tivities of the same character as those which graced the "Harvest Home," will be in- dulged in at the Town Hall, and on New Year's evening, if the sleighing is of a nature to permit persons at a distance to attend, an oyster supper will be served at the Hall. So it will be seen that lots of fun and an abun- dance of feasting will be afforded to all who may see proper to attend. Several of the articles which are up for chances will be dis- posed of at the Festival, but the more valu- able articles will be retained until further effort can be made to obtain something like their value in prices.

DEATH OF WILLIAM E. HUTCHINSON.—William E. Hutchinson, the publisher of the Alleghanian, is no more! He died on Thursday morning, aged 19 years, 10 months and 12 days.

The deceased was in the enjoyment of ex- cellent health until some three months since, when he was taken down with a severe hemorrhage of the lungs. From that time on his death hope and fear alternated with his friends—but alas! their hopes were doomed to disappointment.

Mr. Hutchinson was a young gentleman of the finest type. Manly, decided and en- ergetic in his conduct, he was, at the same time gentle, courteous, and amiable in his deportment. His unexpected death will leave a chasm in the circle of which he was the centre. His family have our deepest sympathy in their affliction.

ROMAN MEAT.—We are under obligations to our generous Teutonic friend, Mr. Otto Rossi, of Altoona, for a very opportune pre- sent in shape of a can of his unsurpassable Roman meat, for which the donor will please accept our stomach felt thanks. Mr. Rossi is a confectioner and pastry baker of well known reputation, and we commend all par- ties, and especially those on the eve of matri- mony, to apply to him for all needed sweet- meats and other "chicken fixens" in his line. In our estimation Mr. R.'s mince meat is the best that was ever sandwiched between cakes of baked dough, but if any one wants our judgment in the matter all he has to do is to call at our domicil and— smell the can.

A HANDSOME PRESENT.—The other day, while a tiresome sitting in Bankruptcy, on entering our sanctum we found a square flat box that had been handed in "By Express— Charges Paid." On opening we found it to contain a beautiful engraving of the "Old Penn Man- sion, Philadelphia; Built A. D. 1696—De- stroyed A. D. 1867. With compliments of Theodore M. Apple, Philad'a, to Robert Johnston, Esq., Ebensburg." Such was the inscription beautifully written under- neath the picture, which is elegantly framed with panels taken from the joists of the "Mansion." There is an Apple for you— and to the core.

JURY COMMISSIONERS.—John Buck, Esq., and James Cooper, Esq., the newly elected Jury Commissioners, will meet with his Honor Judge Taylor, on Thursday, the 2d January next, to select the jury for the coming year. We did not favor the law. We must say that two men could scarcely get in Cambria county, better qualified for the box with good jurors than the two gentlemen have been chosen.

CHRISTMAS.

To our readers we tender the compliments of the season. We wish the patrons of the Freeman, one and all, as well as the "rest of mankind," a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. The birth-day of the Redeemer of mankind should, of all days in the year, be a day fraught with sentiments of good will to all our fellow creatures. The nativity of the Saviour of the world, the Second Person of the Godhead, is itself a symbol of "Peace on earth and good will to all mankind."

Christmas, from Christ and Mass, has been recognized as a Christian holiday ever since the coming of the Messiah, though the manner of its observance has been varied in different countries, and among different religious denominations, but with the whole Christian world it has been recognized as a season of joyousness. While in Catholic countries it is the greatest holiday known to the calender, in nearly all Protestant communities it has been regarded with more or less of religious observance, and of late it has even been made a legal holiday by statute.

Christmas Carols, in imitation of the songs of the shepherds, have been in vogue from an early period of the history of Christianity, and are beautifully illustrated in the prose-poetry of Dickens, in his stories of that name. We present this week a beautiful "Carol" from the pen of our gifted young friend, "Linnet," and though the talented warbler is now far from her mountain home, we know her effusions will be none the less appreciated.

The Christmas Carols of the Welsh are said to have excelled all others, and are to be found in their "Liffyn Corolan," (Book of Carols.)—an old volume.

The Christmas Tree, the delight of the juveniles, is said to be of German origin. A young evergreen tree (generally a yew) was planted in the children's apartment, and all its branches loaded with sweetmeats and "goodies," and often more valuable presents. This practice still prevails very generally, and indeed the children are opposed to any innovation upon it.

Another traditional usage is to hang up the urchins' stockings on Christmas Eve, when Christopher Kringle, Esq, (vulgarly known as Kriss Kringle,) would fill the said stockings with sugar plums, candies, etc.— We recollect of making this experiment on one occasion, but Christmas morning showed us a stocking as empty as it was on Christmas eve when we took our foot out of it. This mystery was, however, explained by showing us a large hole in the heel of the stocking, through which the "goodies" were allowed to have escaped. "Darn the thing," was all we said, as we once more "put our foot in it."

Christmas day was also a great leveler, both on the Continent and the British Isles. The prince and the beggar, the lord and the peasant, the nobleman and his retainers, ignoring all distinctions of rank held a common jubilee—a clown, or quick-witted fellow, designated as "lord of misrule," or "Abbot of unreason," usually leading the revels. All the tenants were entertained in the manorial hall, and the lord of the manor encouraged all manner of innocent jollity.

Then opened wide the baron's hall,
To vassal, tenant, serf, and all;
Power laid his rod of rule aside,
And ceremony doffed his pride.
The heir, with roses in his shoes,
That night might village partner choose.
All hailed, with uncontrolled delight
And general voice, the happy night
That to the cottage, as the crown,
Brought tidings of salvation down.
England was merry Eng'and when Old Christmas brought his sports again.
'Twas Christmas broach'd the mightiest ale;
'Twas Christmas told the merriest tale;
A Christmas gambol oft would cheer
A poor man's heart through half the year.

At Queen's College, and at legal festivities the chief dish was a boar's head, bearing a chant, half Latin, half English, running thus:

Caput apri defero
Reddens laides Domino.
The boar's head in hand bring I,
With garlands gay and rosemary,
I pray you all sing merrily,
Qui estis in convivio.

The Yule log is still a Scottish observance. Yule is the Saxon term for Christmas, but is nearly obsolete, excepting in Scotland. The Yule fire was made on Christmas with the understanding that the young folks should hold carnival until the last log was reduced to ashes. The cunning youngsters were wont to procure a water-soaked black oak or chestnut log of monstrous size, and by this means would lengthen their revels till Candlemas, which always ended the Christmas time.

This was a famous time for courtships among the Scotch, who, as a general thing, had no religious exercises on Yule: and these occasions are often noted in Scottish poetry. Burns more than once notices this. One of his most popular songs commences:

Duncan Gray came here to woo,
Ha, ha, the wooing o't,
On blythe yule night when we were fu'
Ha, ha, the wooing o't.
Maggie coost her head fu' high, &c.

The Catholic custom of decorating churches was formerly, and is still, extended to castles and cottages, the mistletoe being the favorite wood, on account of an old Druid reverence for the "mistletoe bough;" but holly and ivy are common decorations in England; and laurel at Oxford and Cambridge colleges.

It is also a superstitious idea that the spirits of the deceased retreat from the earth on the approach of the dawn of Christmas; and hence in Hamlet, Shakspeare makes Marcellus say in speaking of the ghost of the defunct king:

It faded on the crowing of the cock,
Some say, that ever 'gainst that season comes
Wherein our Saviour's birth is celebrated,
This bird of dawning singeth all night long,
And then they say no spirit dares stir abroad;
The nights are wholesome; no planets strike,
No fairy takes nor witch hath power to charm,
So hallowed and so gracious is the time.
Horatio:—So have I heard, and do in part believe it.

* * * * * * *

And, now, kind reader, we have only to repeat our best wishes for your health and happiness. Before we greet you again, another year will be commenced. Time rolls on—let us improve it; for soon "the night cometh when no man can work." Let us with what talent we have try to do good among our kind. If our neighbor has wronged us, let us forgive him. If we have wronged him let us hasten to make atonement. Let us begin the coming year "at peace with all mankind." Where we see sorrow, let us soothe it—where we see want, let us relieve it. Let us treat the whole world as one great brotherhood;—and play the part of a brother in it. In conclusion, let us all endeavor to act our part on the grand theatre of life, so that we shall have an approving conscience; for

Honor and shame from no condition rise—
Act well your part, there all the honor lies.

STOVES of all kinds for sale at Williams' Store and Tinware Depot.

EDITORIALITIES, LOCAL AND GENERAL.—Argument Court meets on Thursday the 2d day of January next.

We put our paper to press one day earlier than usual this week. The reason of course is obvious to all.

Mr. David Leidy, one of the oldest settlers of Jackson township, died one day last week, aged about 65 years.

William R. Aukrim, who was committed some time since on the charge of bigamy, has been released on bail.

Our Johnstown letter, much to our regret, is non est this week. We hope "Sku Bal" has not wearied in well doing.

The public schools of our borough closed to-day. (Tuesday,) and studies will not be resumed in them until Monday, January 13th.

Our respected townsman, A. C. Mullin, Esq., has removed with his family to Ashland, where he purposes making his future residence. Success attend him wherever he goes.

Mr. Isaac Crawford offers at private sale, on favorable terms, his valuable farm in Cambria township. Persons seeking an investment of the kind will do well to consult him.

An adjourned Court for jury trials will be held on the week commencing the fourth Monday of February next, being the week immediately preceding the regular March term.

The First Annual Teacher's Institute for Cambria county, meets on Tuesday, the 7th January, proximo. It is hoped that teachers and others interested will give it their attention.

Vast quantities of lumber are daily finding their way to the Ebensburg depot. The amount taken out this winter promises to be very large, notwithstanding the dullness of the market.

We have at present a carnival of sleighing; the rain, which it was thought would remove the snow, became incorporated with it, and instead of damaging, has improved the facilities for snowy locomotion.

Burgess Moore lost a valuable mule on the Carrolltown road, on Saturday last. Another sled team came in collision with his, and by some mishaps one of his mules was ripped open in a shocking manner.

A fellow possessed of more daring than discretion jumped from the Express train at Cresson, a few days ago, while it was under full headway. He wanted to stop at that Station, but the train didn't. He fortunately escaped with but slight injury.

Prof. Hugh H. Hughes proposes to teach a class in vocal music, commencing next week. Mr. Hughes has an extraordinary natural talent for music, which he has cultivated with care and discrimination. We recommend him to the patronage of our citizens. Tickets may be had at Rees J. Lloyd's Drug Store.

We regret to learn that Mr. Rees S. Lloyd, a worthy citizen of Cambria township, met with a painful accident, on Monday last. While engaged in grinding corn cobs for his oxen at his steam mill, a part of the machinery flew from its position and struck him on one of the arms, inflicting a severe fracture below the elbow.

We notice by the Johnstown Tribune that our energetic friend, F. W. Hay, has sold one hundred and fifty of Spears' Anti Dust Heating Stoves since last fall, and has orders for more. And so he ought to. He is one of the most liberal advertisers and accommodating business men in Cambria county, and his success is as well merited as it is liberally promoted.

The concert for the benefit of the Mountaineer Base Ball Club comes off on Wednesday evening, January 8th, 1868. It is under the superintending care of Prof. H. H. Hughes, a gentleman fully qualified for the position. Preparations have been made to render it what no doubt it will be—a complete success. We trust the troupe will be greeted by a full house.

On a cold day recently Mrs. Myrunett Kraigle and her two daughters started from Frenchville, Clearfield county, to Sinnemahoning, a distance of twenty-six miles. They were all thinly clad and had provisions for only one meal. Night overtook them in the woods where they remained without shelter, and in the morning the mother was found dead. The little girls were rescued by some hunters.

CHRISTMAS comes but once a year,
And coming brings us gladness;
So let us all enjoy its cheer,
And bid farewell to sadness.

And while we are doing all this, don't let us forget that H. A. Shoemaker & Co. have the greatest lot of seasonable goods in this market, and sell them at prices considerably lower than any other dealer pretends to do.

THE GOLDEN RULE.—Over the door of one of our most enterprising mercantile firms may be read, in golden letters, at all hours of the day, these patronymic words, "Mills & Davis." If you bob in under these golden letters you will find a golden opportunity for buying as many goods for a paper dollar as used to be purchased for a gold one in days gone by. Try the experiment.

OUT AND IN.—On Saturday the 14th instant the term of James Myers, Esq., as Sheriff of Cambria county ended, and John A. Blair, Esq., having taken the oath of office, commenced the performance of its duties. We wish the late Sheriff a pleasant retirement from the cares and responsibilities of his office; and his successor, a pleasant and successful term.

LITTLE STOCKINGS.—How many little stockings will be filled to repletion, this night with Christmas gifts, and how many little hearts will overflow to-morrow morning when they see what Kriss Kringle has done for them. Don't forget that C. T. Roberts' store is the great depot for toys and other suitable goods with which to make the little folks joyous.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.—Robert Pringle, a freight engineer on the Pennsylvania Rail Road, was struck on the head, while leaning out at the side of his engine, on Monday morning, by a telegraph pole or some other object, near Penn Station, and so seriously injured that his life is despaired of.

A SHAME.—It would be almost a shame for any one to permit his or her wearing apparel to go to seed at this inclement season of the year, when goods of all kinds can be bought so cheap, as they can be, at the extensive mercantile emporium of V. S. Barker, on Main street.

STOP MY PAPER!—An old gentleman residing near Ebensburg, many years ago, undertook to break down the United States bank, by refusing its paper. The gentleman in Munster township who stopped the Freeman for the same purpose, will be equally successful.

SHOPPING.—As this is the time when shopping is more generally indulged in than any other season of the year, seekers after the best articles of merchandise should not pass the door of our merchant friend, Jas. M. Thompson. Stock new, ample and cheap.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.

ALTOONA, DEC. 23, 1867.

Friend Mac—Quite spirited revivals of religion are at present in progress in the Methodist and Lutheran churches here, and some forty or fifty persons have been added to the membership of each of these churches. Our town is sadly in need of revivals, and it is to be hoped that these meetings will accomplish much good.

At the last meeting of the Democratic Club a very animated discussion was indulged in in reference to the reception of the report of a Committee appointed at a previous meeting on the subject of the President's Message. Capt. Crozier led the opposition in a very ingenious and argumentative speech, followed on the same side by the worthy President of the Club, while, on the other hand, the report of the Committee was ably advocated by Messrs. Fettinger, Lloyd, and others.—The report was finally tabled for the present.

On my way to the Company's shops, on Thursday last, I was somewhat surprised at the commotion and excitement among the people, and looking in the direction they appeared to be going to and coming from, I saw upwards of a hundred persons assembled in the vicinity of the "Green Corner." My first impression was that Mrs. Clark, alias Mrs. Government, alias Mrs. Lincoln, was disposing of some articles from her superabundant wardrobe. To satisfy my curiosity, I started towards the scene of excitement. Meeting a gentleman, I inquired the cause of the commotion, when he informed me that they had a beast in a cage. Thinking it possible that he had reference to Butler, Sheridan or Stevens, I hastened forward, but discovered, soon after my arrival, that the "animile" was neither Mrs. Government, Spoon Butler, Tyrant Sheridan, nor Malignant Stevens. It was a more amiable and useful beast than either of these creatures, being no less than a bull-y calf, seven months and three days old, which weighed 1182 lbs., dressed 774½ lbs., and furnished 68 lbs. of unclean or entrail fat, while its hide kicked the beam to the tune of 95 lbs. It was reared by Pat. M'Closkey, near Hollidaysburg, and killed and retailed by those princes of butchers, Messrs. Zink & Olmus. Can Cambria county produce anything to equal this juvenile specimen of the genus bovine? If so, trot it out.

The fire companies of this place have elected the following officers: Alex. Smith, Esq., Chief Engineer, and Hon. B. F. Rose and Archy Maxwell, Esq., Assistant Engineers. All first-rate, thorough going gentlemen, and fully competent for the duties assigned them.

Quite an amusing incident occurred in one of the stores in this place, a few evenings since. The proprietor of the aforesaid store and one of his customers got into a discussion on the subject of religion, and the controversary waxed so warm that it finally culminated in a grand tableau representing the customer making a straight coat tail for the door with the proprietor's foot in unpleasant proximity to his last end. The scene was enjoyed exceedingly by lookers-on.

Yours, &c., T. I. M.

Dying Declarations of the Murdered Fenians.

The Irishman (Dublin) has published "Dying Declarations of the Manchester Victims." The Irishman, in giving these "declarations," says: "It has been stated in the English papers that the three victims at Manchester left written declarations in the hands of their confessors.—These did not think prudent to give them publication, just as they persuaded them from speaking on the scaffold. We, however, see no reason why these documents, copies of which we have been forwarded, should be withheld from the public, more especially as they are worthy of the occasion, and contain grave admonition to the courts of justice."

DECLARATION OF WILLIAM PHILIP ALLEN.

"I wish to say a few words relative to the charge for which I am to die. In a few hours more I will be going before my God. I state in the presence of the great God that I am not the man who shot Sergeant Brett. If that man's wife is alive, never let her think that I am the person who deprived her of a husband; if his family is alive, let them never think I am the man who deprived them of their father. I confess I have committed other sins against my God, and I hope He will accept my death as an homage and adoration which I owe His Divine Majesty, and in atonement for my past transgressions against Him." Further on he adds:—"But then I ought not complain. Was not our Savior sold for money, and his life sworn away by false witnesses?"

DECLARATION OF MICHAEL LARKIN.

"Men of the world—I, as a dying man, going before my God, solemnly declare I never fired a shot in all my life, much less the day the attack was made on the van, nor did I ever put a hand to the van.—The world will remember the widow's son's life that was sworn away, by which he leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss. I am not dying for shooting Brett, but for mentioning Colonel Kelly's and Deasy's names in the court. I am dying a patriot, for God and my country, and Larkin will be remembered in time to come by the sons and daughters of Erin."

DECLARATION OF MICHAEL O'BRIEN.

I have only to make these few remarks: I did not use a firearm or throw stones on the day that Colonel Kelly and Captain Deasy were so gallantly rescued. I was not present when the van was attacked. I say this not by way of reproach, or to give annoyance to any persons, but I say it in the hope that witnesses may be more particular when identifying, and that juries may look more closely to the character of the witnesses, and to their evidence, before they convict a person to send him before his God. I trust that those who swore to seeing me with a revolver, or throwing stones, were nothing more than mistaken I forgive them from my heart, and, likewise, I forgive all who have ever done me or intended to do me an injury. I know I have been guilty of many sins against my God; in satisfaction for those sins I have tried to do what little penance I could, and having received the sacraments of the Church, I have humbly begged that He would accept of my sufferings and death, to be united to the sufferings and death of His innocent Son, through whom my sufferings can be rendered acceptable.

A FACT FOR FARMERS.—It may not be generally known that the seed of the sunflower is the most infallible remedy yet discovered for the speedy cure of founder in horses. The directions which we glean from a brief article upon that subject in the Essex Banner says: "Immediately on discovering that your horse is foundered, mix about a pint of the whole seed in his food, and it will perfect a cure."

GREEN EYE FOR SHEEP.—The Prairie Farmer gives the successful management of a farmer in Central Illinois. He sows rye among his corn at the last dressing, which gives at the time of the gathering a fine growth of green feed. After husking, the sheep are then turned into the fields, and remain there all winter, being housed and fed on hay in stormy weather only. Sheep being light, do not injure the land by poaching.

MEDICAL PREPARATIONS.

POLAND'S
Magic Bilious Powders.

This Preparation is the discovery of Rev. J. W. POLAND, formerly Pastor of the Baptist Church in Goffstown, N. H.—a man dearly beloved by that denomination throughout N. England. He was obliged to leave the pulpit and study medicine to save his own life, and his MAGIC POWDERS are one of the most wonderful discoveries of modern times. It is the GREAT LIVER and BILIOUS REMEDY, which completely throws in the shade all other discoveries in medicine; and it affords him much gratification that they receive the unanimous approbation of all who have tested them. The Magic Bilious Powders are a POSITIVE CURE FOR LIVER COMPLAINT in its most aggravated form, and an immediate corrector of all BILIOUS DERANGEMENTS. Excellent for Headache, Constipation, Pimples, Blotches, Sallow Skin, Drowsiness, Dizziness, Palpitation, Heartburn, and a most wonderful
Cure and Preventative of Fever & Ague
(We advise all who are troubled with this fearful malady to always keep the Powders on hand ready for immediate use.)
Here are a few important particulars:—1st. They are the great specific for Bilious Affections. 2d. They are the only known remedies that will cure Liver Complaint.—3d. They are the only known remedy that will cure Constipation. 4th. The Powders are so thorough in their operation that one package will be all that the majority of those using them will require to effect a cure. 5th. They are a mild and pleasant yet the most effectual cathartic known. 6th. They are the cheapest and best medicine extant, as they can be sent by mail to any part of the globe for the price, 50 cents.
Circulars, containing certificates, information, etc., sent to any part of the world free of charge. ☞ Sold by all Druggists, or by mail on application to
C. G. CLARK & CO., Gen'l Agents.
Price, 50 Cts. per Box. NEW HAVEN, CT.

COE'S DYSPEPSIA CURE!!
This great remedy for all DISEASES OF THE STOMACH is the discovery of the inventor of Coe's valuable Cough Balsam, while experimenting for his own health. It cured Cramp in the Stomach for him which had before yielded to nothing but choloform.
The almost daily testimony from various parts of the country encourage us to believe there is no disease caused by a disordered stomach it will not speedily cure. Physicians endorse and use it. Ministers give testimony of its efficacy; and from all directions we receive tidings of cures performed.
Dyspepsia it is sure to cure. Heartburn one dose will cure. Sick Headache it has cured in hundreds of cases. Headache and Dizziness it stops in thirty minutes. Acidity of the Stomach it corrects at once. Rising of the Food it stops immediately. Distress after Eating one dose will remove. Cholera Morbus rapidly yields to a few doses. Bad Breath will be changed with half a bottle.
IT IS PERFECTLY HARMLESS!
Its unprecedented success is owing to the fact that it cures by assisting Nature to reassert her sway in the system.
Nearly every dealer in the United States sells it at ONE DOLLAR PER BOTTLE.
